(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
PETERSBURG, VA., September 24.—
Mr. James T. Rahlly, a young attorney in this city, employed in the interest of Doe Bacon, has returned to Petersburg with affidavits and other information which he believes, when presented to the Governor, will induce further executive clemency. He thinks many of the conservative people of Boydton and the country of Mecklenburg agree with him that Bacon should have a new trial. The Governor will be urged to allow sufficient time fo ran appeal to be taken, and Mr. Rahlly is convinced that the affidavits has secured will satisfy Ills Excellency that he will be fully justifiable in following this course.

These companies for the present will remain unattached, increasing the number of unattached companies to twelve, or enough for a full regiment, making the third regiment. Whether another regiment will be organized or these companies will be loft unattached has not been announced. It is said that the companies at several points have made such a poor showing at inspection in three or more cases that they are likely to be disbanded. Unless a company shows a certain percentage at the annual inspection, it is the policy of the inspecting officer to recommend the disbandment of those companies.

This fact was very evident to those who last night witnessed the production of "Reaping the Harvest." play by the younger Fitch is not altogether bad; indeed, there is much in It that proves entertaining to the not too The first act gives some promise that the play is to be of a quiet nature, and the climax is as undemonstrative as even Clyde Fitch dould wish. The ending of the second act, however, should cause the distinguished playwright to feel ashamed that any one bearing his name should have been responsible for such a stereotyped scone as that which forms the climax of this act. The scene has been repeated in dramas almost without number, and one wonders what the great army of dramatists would have done if the scene could have been copyrighted by the first man who conceived it. It is the old story of an innocent man, finding a bloody dagger near the bedy of a murdered man, and then being accused of the feed by the villian, with all of the other characters in the play present as witnesses.

The Op ra.

The Rose Cecilia Shay Grand Opera Company will be heard at the Academy on Wednesday, matines and night. This organization comes with the strongest kind of endorsement. The menagement has made the assertion that it is the strongest organization that has ever come out of New York and curiously enough this claim has been borne out by the press wherever Miss Shay has made her appearance. The company includes some of the most famous singers on the eperatic stage, and Miss Shay has made her appearance. The company includes some of the most famous singers on the operatic stage, and Miss Shay hereif bas long since passed that stage where her ability can be questioned. She is an artist of the very highest class, and it is doubtiful if the atage has ever seen a more fascinating Carmen. Some of the critics, however, declare that her Margueria in "Faust," is even a stronger piece of work than her Carmen, while others yet are in love with her Santuzza.

The repertoir of the oempany is an exceedingly strong one this season and the regret of music lovers here is only that the company earnot be heard in but two operas. And about these operas Manager Rex is having his hands full. Some of his patrons will have Miss Shay in notting but "Carmen," while others are insistent about "Faust." The "Bohemlan Girl." With a grace and elmplicity that is truly delightful, she adds to the chairacter an interest that is absorbing. Miss Gallatin is an accomplished actress and our theatre-goers are to be congrative of witnessing her forceful and perfect impersonation of Mrs. Alving, Her engagement is for one night only, at the Academy on Thursday, October 1st.

Tour - Inspection.

The Corporation Commission left yesterday morning over the Atlante C ast line Railway on a tour of inspection of the properties of that company with a view to assessing the same for taxation. The trip was made in an officers private car. Judge Crump only went over part of the system, returning to the city later in the day.

Mr. B. J. Wysor, assistant secretary of the commission, was the ranking official on duly in the offices yesterday. He had just returned from a trip through Southwest Virginia.

Owing to the absence of the commission and Secretary Upshur, no charters were granted yesterday. The empleyes of the office were busy, however, on the accumulated work, which is sufficient alone to occupy them for weeks to come.
